A little boy, the son of Chris. D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of croup. Much thick stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." Mrs. Wilson was one of a family of twenty-four children, and has survived them all. After her marriage in May 1829, to John Wilson, their home was in Liberty, until a few years ago, when

Majestic Demonstration!

Going on All This Week

FREE

THE GREAT AND GRAND MAJESTIC RANGE
THE RANGE WITH A REPUTATION
MADE IN ALL SIZES AND STYLES.

MAJESTIC RANGES use less fuel; heat more water—and heat it hotter; costs practically nothing for repairs; lasts three times as long; bake better; easier to keep clean and give better satisfaction than any other range on the market. If you know positively that the above statements were true, wouldn't you buy a Majestic at once?

SOUVENIR

Set of Majestic ware FREE

If you will call at our store during our Majestic Demonstration Week and allow us to show you the many advantages and superior qualities of the great and grand Majestic Range, and will purchase one at the regular price, we will give you FREE the beautiful and useful Souvenir Set of Ware illustrated in this advertisement. This ware is made to match the quality of the Majestic Ranges, and we know all ladies will see the beauty and utility of this set, especially the first three pieces, which are entirely new and cannot be had alone by purchase, except at a very high price. The prices of Majestic Ranges are the same, but we give the set FREE with each Majestic Range bought during demonstration week only.

REASONS WHY THE GREAT MAJESTIC YOU SHOULD BUY

1. It has the reputation of being best range money can buy.
2. It not only has the reputation but is the best range made and we will prove this to you if you will let us.
3. It is constructed of Malleable iron (material you can't break) and of Charcoal iron (material that resists rust 300 per cent. greater than steel) is riveted together airtight. No heat escapes or cold air enters range, thus uses very little fuel to do perfect work.
4. The reservoir alone is worth the price of the range over any other reservoir made. It boils 15 gallons of water; is heated like a tea kettle, with pocket against left-hand lining, and is movable, and sets on a frame, hence cannot wear out. When water gets too hot it can be moved away from fire.

COME IN DURING DEMONSTRATION WEEK AND WE WILL PROVE IT TO YOU.

KENTUCKIAN WHO HAS MADE GOOD.

Clarksville, Tenn., January 14. There lives in Montgomery county, one mile from this city, one of the most successful land dealers in the South, as well as a very interesting character, Benjamin Unsel at the age of 13 as a clerk in a country store in Nelson county, Ky., A. H. Unsel, by thrift and perseverance, has amassed a fortune. Mr. Unsel lives a very quiet life, is unmarried and has no living relatives in this section. During the past twenty years he has handled more than 1,000,000 acres of land, and at present is the owner of more than 300,000 acres which is scattered over this country, Mexico and South America.

His holdings at present are said to be 25,000 acres in Mexico, 25,000 acres in Argentine Republic, 25,000 acres in Brazil, near Waverly, 15,000 acres in Florida, 7,000 acres near Mobile, Alabama, 25,000 acres in Georgia, 3,000 acres in Montgomery county, Tenn., 30,000 acres in Mississippi. Other small tracts of land are scattered over a dozen different states.

Mr. Unsel said he began work with a mortgage of $2,500 hanging over his father's home which he set out to pay. He clerked in a country store for nine years, during which time he studied the cattle business and read much about land which was being sold very cheap. He made a number of small deals and finally traded for 1,300 acres in Mississippi and Alabama. It was this deal that really led to his success, and which gave him his financial backing. He exchanged the land for a tract in Florida on which phosphate was found and he soon closed it out for $40,000 cash. His next move was to purchase, with a partner, 40,000 acres of cheap land in Mississippi. This was known as swamp land timber. It was located in Nebraska county, and was considered practically worthless, selling from 25 cents to $1.00 per acre. In 1906, however, Mr. Unsel closed a deal with a syndicate, disposing of 25,000 acres for $250,000. He is one of the largest cattle dealers in

Narrow Escape.

The Harrodsburg Herald prints under the head of "Good Suit Ruined" the following article:

Mr. Charles Chaplin, who lives on the Handy pike, made a narrow escape this week from death or serious injury. He was feeding some hogs which were confined in a rail pen. Going near the fence to throw straw into the pen for bedding, a vicious sow thrust her head through the opening between the rails and, seizing him by the coat and trousers, attempted to drag him through the fence into the pen. Fortunately he got hold of a stick with which he belabored the infuriated animal, but she refused to release her hold until the coat and trousers succumbed to the strain. The coat and pants were of corduroy and remarkably strong. If they had not given away Mr. Chaplin might have suffered death.

To a Twist of the "Weed."

Some sing of the lily, some sing of the rose,
Some sing of each flower in beauty that blows;
But sing me a song that shall render its meed
To the fragrance and aroma found in a weed,
Which banishes care and mitigates grief—
I mean a big twist of old "natural leaf!"
When sorrow's dark mantle the spirit doth wear,
And the heart is oppressed with the demon of care,
Then get out your pipe and its magic invoke
And all of your troubles will vanish in smoke!
O, you who have tried it will know what I mean
When the praises I sing of a hand of long green!

Since the day of King James and his old "counterblast!"
It away of all classes has ever held fast,
And its patron saint, Raleigh, forever will live
In remembrance as sweet as affection can give,
And the incense we burn is an offering seen
In wreaths of blue smoke from a twist of long green!
Now some may advise you and others may swear
That nicotine poison your nerves will impair,
And from the weed you'd just keep aloof
From heartburn and nalsy you'd surely be proof—
For a man who had died at hundred fifteen
Was "hastened away" by smoking long green!
But a cigar, a pipe, or a good juicy chew
Will yield you more comfort than harm they will do,
And murder the microbes that float in the air,
And wave magical dreams in the old arm chair,
If you will remember and never forget,
To just draw the line at a vile cigarette!

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive. The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case. For example, John W. Lee, 616 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, sundries, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. B. Finchum, Jackson, Ky., says the name of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell whose member of the family will need a good laxative. In order to have you or any other suffer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense. Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today. If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for the service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 809 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

LOUISVILLE TIMES ON TOBACCO SITUATION

TO THE TOBACCO GROWERS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY:

By our request there is printed below two clippings from the Louisville Times concerning the tobacco conditions in Kentucky. As beneficiaries of the Burley Tobacco Society, I ask you to read them. Louisville, as you know, is the largest tobacco market in the world, and is the business center of the American Tobacco Co., whose mammoth factories are worth millions to the city and give employment to thousands of its people. Yet the Times encourages co-operation among farmers and commands the Burley Tobacco Society, while the influential tobacco raisers of Washington County sell their crop on a Loose Leaf Market, thereby discouraging co-operation and opposing the Society which was organized solely for the benefit of tobacco raisers. W. A. CLEMENTS.

THE BURLEY SOCIETY.
The Times published yesterday the first of a series of articles which will appear in its columns semi-weekly, setting forth the side of the Burley Tobacco Society in its claim to the support of all growers of Burley tobacco and in any controversy which may arise with the Government.

To the Burley Society, the farmers of Central Kentucky owe it that their condition to day is more generously and generally prosperous than it has been in a quarter of a century. The secret of the society's success has been co-operation, and this co-operation must be maintained if the farmers are not again to see seven-cent tobacco.

The Times believes, not only, in the right, but the duty of the farmers to stand together for a fair profit for honest work. So long as the farmers who compose the Burley Society stand for their rights and observe the rights of others guaranteed them under the law, The Times columns will remain open to them. If night riding is resumed, The Times will fight it to the best of its ability as a wrong to the individual, to the society and to the State.

AS SEEN AT WASHINGTON.
Hon. Campbell Cantrell, member of Congress, has thought it necessary to come to the support and rescue of the Burley Society, and all associated farmers. Perhaps it was necessary at Washington, where the investigation and catagorization of the Tobacco Trust drag "from generation to generation" with a more than Jarrindial delay; but here Prize Chickens.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Kyle attended the Poultry Show in Lexington last week and the birds they exhibited carried off some pretty nice honors. They won prizes on 1st hen; 1st and 4th cockerel; 1st pen; 2nd and 3rd pullet; 3rd cock bird, and a handsome silver cup for the best display. The 1st and 2nd prize pullets were raised entire from the Kyle stock of chickens, their breed being the Barred Plymouth Rocks. One male bird from the display was sold while in Lexington for $40. Some of the biggest breeders in this and other states had entries at the show, and the honors won by the Kyle bunch were awarded above some close competitors. Mr. and Mrs. Kyle have a splendid display of handsome trophies secured by their chickens.—Harrodsburg Herald.

A Sprained Ankle.
As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches in 2 or 3 weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is often 2 or 3 months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, as directed, a cure may as a rule be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. Sold by The Leo Haydon Drug Co.

Business Growing.
The poultry business is growing and growing rapidly in every section of the State. The quality of the fowls raised is improving from year to year. The commercial importance of the poultry industry is being more fully recognized, not only by those engaged in it, but by the public at large. The poultry shows and associations over the State are doing good work in bringing standard bred poultry to the notice of the people, creating interest the like of which has never before been seen, and otherwise upbuilding the industry. Additions to the ranks of those breeding pure-bred poultry are constantly being made, and the outlook is exceedingly bright for a prosperous future for all those engaged in the work.—Farmer's Home Journal.

In Kentucky, we know better. We recognize that, technical and vexatious hindrances to the contrary notwithstanding, the society and its kindred have justified their existence. They have made good. Better still, they have made enemies—bitter, vindictive, influential, with friends at court.

And it is to these same friends, wounded in the pocket, of all seats of trouble the most sensitive, that we are indebted for that exhibition of Federal activity which finds voice in the rumored prosecution of the society on some count of doubtful validity.

We do not know, and for the matter of that, we do not know that we care, whether the scope and activity of the Burley Society are, or are not, a palpable and provable fighting of the devil with fire. But we do know—and this is important—that it has been successful; that, measured by results, it has made good. If it had not, this prosecution would never have been heard of, and the first would have been content to earn its dividends, and declare so much of its earnings as the stock market commitments of its owners rendered expedient.

As to the campaign of abuse and contumely to which Mr. Cantrell devoted so much heat and indignation, may we not remind him of the old legal adage as to the occasional necessity of black-guarding the other side's attorney? The Burley Society is doing very well thank you; a great many folk—at Boston and elsewhere—are giving it much gratuitous advertising. And it has Mr. Cantrell to speak for it—burely an equitable arrangement for both.

A Far-reaching Combine.
The recent absorption of the Western Union by the American Telephone and Telegraph company places Theodore N. Vail, president of the latter institution, at the head of the greatest combination of its kind in the world. Nearly every line of wire communication in this country is now controlled by the two great companies.

Mr. Vail was born in Ohio sixty-four years ago, but his childhood and youth were spent in New Jersey. At twenty-three he was a railway mail clerk, eventually becoming manager of the railway mail service. Thruing of government employ, he allied himself in 1878 with the Bell telephone interests. His success with that growing institution was immediate, and he soon was made general manager. In 1888 he retired and spent some years traveling in Europe. Later he went to South America and engaged in building street railways. He retained his interests in the telephone company, however, and two years ago was elected its head.

Those Pies of Boyhood.
How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. What's changed? The pies? No, it's you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach, the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete tonic up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They'll restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c at Hayden & Robertson's.

DEATH OF MRS. CLARK.

The home of Mrs. Geo. Kaye was saddened on Friday, Jan. 14, 1910, when the death angel visited there and sealed the eyelids of her beloved mother, Mrs. Catherine Clark. All that skilled physicians and loving friends could do was done for her recovery, but all to no avail. Surrounded by the family circle, relatives and sympathizing friends she answered her Savior's call with willing lips. Mrs. Clark was 54 years of age, and is survived by one brother, Mr. John Hahn, of Mackville. The remains were interred in Fairview cemetery.

Drank Poison.

Mrs. Charles W. Bell wife of Insurance Commissioner Charles W. Bell, had a narrow escape from death via the carbolic acid route Wednesday morning, at her home near Frankfort. As it was, she was badly burned by the fiery liquid and suffered much pain. Mrs. Bell had gone to her medicine chest to take a dose of peppermint, which she takes as a preventive of indigestion. A bottle of carbolic acid was on the shelf with the peppermint and without noticing particularly, Mrs. Bell reached for the bottle and put a small amount in her mouth. The minute that the acid touched her lips, she realized that she had gotten hold of the wrong bottle, so quickly swept it out of her mouth, and then grabbed a glass of water and washed her mouth out. Quick as she was the work of the acid was quicker and she is suffering with a badly burned mouth and lips as a result. Harrodsburg Herald.

ATOP THE FREIGHT TRAIN.

Walking the Cars a Hair Raising Experience For a Novice.

There came over me as I sat in the caboose that evening a wild desire to ride with the engineer in the cab. Planning to slip ahead along the half mile or so of train at the first stop, I made known my desire to our conductor over that part of the run.

"They'll be glad to see you," he told me. "You won't have any trouble getting in there. It's a mild evening."

He swung open the window of the lookout and called to the rear brakeman, "Jim, run along with this here party."

Jim pulled me through the window of the lookout before I clearly realized the entire plan.

It was a slippery path over the roofs of sixty cars to the big engine that was pulling us, and the wind that swept in from the shores of the ice-bound lake, along which the tracks ran for many miles, snapped sharply over those car roofs. Jim hung on to his lantern with one hand, to his cowboy with the other. Long miles over those slippery car roofs had taught him to regard it as no very serious business.

"This ain't nothin'," was his assurance. "It sometimes gets nasty when we get down to zero and a blizzard comes a-rappin' from off over the lake. Sometimes you have to get down and crawl on all fours. It wouldn't be much fun to be swept off the tops of those cars."

There was no disputing that, nor that the three lengthy planks at the gable of the car roof, the not wide promenades. You jump from one to another to cross from car to car, and a man has got to have something of a gymnastic training and some circus as well as railroad blood in his veins to do it many times without dropping into one of the hideous dark abysses between them.

A hand out of the dark slapped me in the face. "Drop," said Jimmie, and, fearing possibly that I might not, he pulled me flat down upon the car roof.

"That was a teitlate," he explained, and before I could ask further there was a short reach of a tunnel, and I understood. We were thrashed through that tunnel like a package in a tube, and if we had raised our arms we could have touched the flying roof of the bore. The smoke lay heavy in the place. It filled our eyes and nostrils.

"Not real nice," said Jimmie cheerily. "But no danger in the holes, save now and then an icicle gets a crust at your out. You see, there ain't much use in arguin' the matter after that 'teitlate' strikes you."—Edward Hungerford in Harper's.

PARIS RAGPICKERS.

An Occupation That is Passed Along From Father to Son.

The ragpickers of Paris are born to their work, the occupation being passed from father to son for generations. Each ragpicker family has its own district, which is inherited by the children and grandchildren.

In spite of all the progress made in modern and elegant Paris' parlors of waste are piled up on the streets in front of many buildings on beautiful boulevards in the early morning hours, and it is the privilege and in fact the mission of the ragpickers to examine this refuse.

They have use for everything, and but little is left after they have passed, their thoroughness being one reason why the system is still allowed. Every scrap of paper, the three-year-old, ragged and often happens that members of a family die either from poisoning from stale food or from a cut from one of the tin—Popular Mechanics.

CAPTURED AS SPIES

A Story of the Civil War.

By THOMAS GRISWOLD.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Butler's coming! Railroad tracks all torn up and the telegraph wires cut! You boys had better get right back to Petersburg. I'm going there to give the alarm."

A stout, covered farmer mounted on a foaming horse, who had come tearing down the Richmond turnpike, shouted this startling news to two barefooted newboys who were resting in the shade on the side of the turnpike, a few yards from the point where it crossed the Richmond and Petersburg railroad.

The time was in the early days of the siege of Petersburg, when General Benjamin F. Butler was operating on the James river.

The older of these two newboys was fifteen. I will call him Jack. I was the younger one and was eleven years old.

We discussed the question whether we should go home or go on toward Richmond and endeavor to get a glimpse of General Butler, whom Confederate boys at that time regarded as a sort of monster.

We started at a brisk walk along the railroad, with our unsold socks of Richmond papers under our arms. As we turned a curve near the Swift Creek bridge we saw, about a mile beyond, a slight that greatly excited us. The air was full of black smoke, through which we saw an occasional flash of flames. Presently we came close enough to discover that the source of the flames was a great pile of telegraph poles and railroad ties.

"Butler's men did that," said Jack. "We'll have to be mighty cautious. Let's get into the ditch along the track and keep a sharp lookout."

Just beyond a slight rise of the ground north of the house was a Union encampment. The smoke lazily rose from a hundred campfires, and the white tents gleamed in the bright sunshine in a manner that was almost painful to the eyes.

Gradually it dawned upon us that the camp had been suddenly abandoned—so suddenly, indeed, that the dinners were left cooking on the fire, and all sorts of camp utensils and provisions were scattered promiscuously around.

We made straight for the big tent in front of which the flag was flying. Jack lowered the flag. With a beating heart I entered the tent. I found it littered with torn papers and maps. In one corner was a camp chest upon which were piled the words, "General B. F. Butler, U. S. A."

In a tent in the rear of General Butler's, which was probably used as a kitchen, we found a stock of provisions that set us wild with delight. We had little to eat at home and now had been for several hours without food.

A pot of coffee steamed on the fire in front of the tent. On the shelves inside was a boiled ham, and about it lay a variety of canned meats and fruits, while a chest was found to contain a quantity of freshly baked bread. "Oh," said Jack, "if we only had a wagon we might carry home a lot of these things."

"Well," said I, "the next best thing is to tote home as much as we can on our backs. What are we going to take?"

"I reckon," said Jack, "that the folks at home would like tea and coffee best. They are scarcest."

We decided to load ourselves down with those two articles. We found some empty sacks and divided the contents of the sack of green coffee in General Butler's kitchen tent into two parts of thirty or forty pounds each. Then into two other sacks we poured a chest of Oolong tea. These were tied up and put inside the sacks containing coffee, and Jack also stuffed into his sack the flag in front of the general's tent, which he had taken down when he first entered the camp.

He suggested that I give him a part of my coffee in order to lighten the load, and at first I was inclined to do so, but when I thought how the people at home after many months' use of chicory, parched corn, roasted sweet potato parings and other poor substitutes for coffee would enjoy the genuine article I made up my mind that I would carry home the contents of the sack if I had to drag it over the entire five miles.

We had been so much excited with our discoveries that we had not noticed that the sun was very low. It would be dark before we could reach home. We gazed longingly at what we were leaving behind and started homeward.

We took the turnpike with the hope of getting a lift in some passing vehicle. As we trudged along we saw two Confederate cavalrymen riding toward us. In our fear lest they should rob us of our precious possessions we slouched along as near the woods as we could get, hoping they would pass without noticing us.

"Vain hope!" "Halt!" we heard one of them shout just as they were abreast of us. One of them, who was a corporal, dismounted.

He was a cruel looking fellow, and we soon discovered that his looks did not belie him. Walking up to Jack, he gruffly asked, "What have you got there?" and at the same time roughly jerked the sack from the terrified boy's shoulder.

Plunging his arm into the sack, he drew out the United States flag. At sight of this the corporal shouted, "Spies—traitors!" and danced about wildly.

It was useless for us to try to explain to the infuriated man, and, to tell the truth, we were too badly frightened to give a good account of ourselves.

"I'm going to carry you to General Beauregard's headquarters," the corporal said, "and you'll be shot as spies."

We believed him. It was not, therefore, with very good spirits that we started on our march to General Beauregard's headquarters.

We wished to throw our sacks away, but our captors would not allow it, so we plodded along, our loads on our backs and the corporal constantly threatening to thrash us for our slowness.

We turned out of the turnpike into a crossroad. I ventured to ask how far General Beauregard's headquarters were and received a cuff on the side of the head from the corporal. I asked the other soldier if he would not carry my sack behind him on his horse's back a little way, I believe he would have done so if the corporal had not forbidden it.

Just as we reached the top of a long hill and I was about to drop from fatigue I saw that we were near our journey's end. In front of us was a large building which before the days of railroads had been a roadside inn. Two guards slowly marched back and forth before the tumble-down steps that led to the porch, which extended across the front of the house and which was now crowded with soldiers, apparently couriers and orderlies.

As we reached the porch the soldiers began to rally the corporal upon his "baby prisoners." He made no reply, but stalked pompously through the open door after instructing his companion to hold us.

This was a useless instruction. We needed no holding except as we were scowling from the floor of the porch, upon which we had fallen completely exhausted and where we remained until the corporal came out to summon us to the presence of General Beauregard.

"Bring the sacks," yelled the corporal as we started in without them.

I am certain that no murderers ever want to receive sentence of death with weaker knees than we had as we were pushed into the presence of General Beauregard.

I had my eyes shut, but opened them when I heard a low, kindly voice saying, "Well, my boys, what is the trouble?"

I saw seated at a little pine table a dapper little man in a gray uniform, with small mustache and imperial and kind looking brown eyes. He was smiling straight into my eyes, and before I knew what I was doing I was smiling, too, and thinking that our lives would be in the hands of a man who could smile like that. Behind the general several men were busily engaged in writing, and scattered around the room were officers whom I took to be members of the staff.

Every one was smiling in the pleasant way. In fact, the only ill-natured man in the room was the corporal who had brought us in.

"Well, well," the general repeated, "what is the trouble?"

The corporal began to answer, but the general said: "I have had your story. Now I want the boys' side."

Jack was much encouraged. He stepped forward and told a straightforward story of the way in which we had been arrested and of the corporal's brutal treatment of us.

"Shameful!" said the general as he looked at the corporal with angry eyes. Then, turning to Jack again, he said kindly, "Now tell me where you got the flag and other things."

"We got them from General Butler's abandoned camp on Shippen's farm," said Jack promptly.

"What! Are you telling the truth?" exactly asked the general as he jumped up and walked around to where we were standing. At the same time the room was filled with the sound of rattling swords as the officers approached.

"Yes, sir, I am telling the truth," Jack answered proudly, looking the general straight in the eyes. Continuing, he told the whole story from beginning to end, not forgetting the dinner we had eaten in General Butler's kitchen tent.

General Beauregard held a whispered consultation with the officers present, and they soon hurried out. Turning to the corporal, the general said: "Is any of the important information these boys have given me I forgive your foolish arrest and brutal treatment of them. You may go."

The corporal went out, crestfallen. By this time it had grown quite dark, and the military clerks were writing by the light of tallow candles. General Beauregard turned to one of them and gave instructions in a low tone. We sat down on a bench at the dark side of the room, apparently forgotten.

Presently the general walked over to where we were sitting and, placing his hand on my head, said, "I suppose you boys are anxious to get home."

"Yes, sir," we answered, both at once.

"Well, I will send you home in my ambulance. Merely accept my thanks for the important information you have brought me."

We drove home, the happiest boys in the world. In General Beauregard's private ambulance, with our precious sacks behind us. What a welcome we found at home and how our old-governed Java and Oolong were appreciated!

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN H. SMITH

MISTAKEN ZEAL.

The man who wanted goldenrod
The emblem of this nation
Was not a chap of very large
And ample observation.
He never nursed his fever through a Tearful, smelly season
With forty handkerchiefs a day,
And that may be the reason.

The goldenrod looks very fine
When in the pasture waving,
But still, in spite of that, it does
A lot of misbehaving.
You wouldn't guess to see it there,
Its modest colors wearing,
That it would cause a line of speech
That sounds some like swearing.

For, in the breeze lightly awayed,
It sifts about its pollen,
And there are many tales of woe,
And eyes are red and swollen,
And the afflicted can but flee
Away to other places
Where blossoms that are not so rude
In autumn days keep cases.

To landscapes that were dull without
It gives a pleasant brightness.
It is, although, on closer range
Not noted for politeness.
To view it from a railroad train
The bright effect is pleasing,
But, little fishes, that it does Induce a word of wheezing!

Try a Change.

Have a good lawyer draw up your will to prevent contests, advises a great lawyer. That is not a new idea.
The world has been trying it out for some time, and where is it now?
Where but in a wreck of broken wills that would reach from the earth to Mars if strung out in a straight line.
Why not try something else for a change?

Why not have a comic opera librettist or the man who writes patent medicine testimonials draw up a few?
Then the contents could be set to music and perhaps it would keep the jury awake when the will was being broken.

Out of a Job.

"There is terrible distress in Switzerland, I hear."
"What's the matter?"
"Old men with just one tooth can't find work any more."
"Why not?"
"A machine has been invented to make the holes in Swiss cheese."

Reliable Guide.

"How could the explorer tell when he got to the north pole?"
"That was easy."
"But there were no signs."
" weren't there? That shows what you don't know about it. There were signs of a hard winter everywhere."

Quite a Risk.

"Do you know Doose?"
"Yes, and he is taking awful chances."
"In what respect?"
"I understand he is running about without a dog license."

Insomnia Victim.

Oneasy lies the head that wears the fur, though his pillow may be made of how could he slumber in an iron jacket.
His ear attuned at all times for a coming.

"Well, how is matrimony, old man?
I hear you have entered that state."
"I am in the second degree now."
"What is that?"
"Alimony."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

In these strenuous times a man does not have to be more than thirty to notice the next generation crowding him.

The only time you can strike a balloonist is when he is down.

There may be a penalty attached to being rich, but there is consolation in the reflection that you always have the money to pay it.

When a man pays as he goes he often develops a tendency for staying.

A soft answer may sometimes take the place of a hard hitter, but not all ways.

It is hard for some to sustain the stock entitled by buying an idea.

Having learned to fly, the only thing left is to dig to the center of the earth, and then man will be about through.

If we like to brag, why shouldn't we,
as it is perhaps the one thing we do well.

The man with the goods doesn't require another man to testify to the fact.

The man who plagues a woman is happy all the day and gives a correct and authentic account of his nights.

LONG POWER BOAT RACE.

Yachtsmen to Compete in 1,100 Mile

Contest to Havana.

Arrangements for the long distance power yacht race from Philadelphia to Havana, which is to be started on May 21, are nearing completion. The prizes to be awarded are of a tempting nature, yachtsmen declare, and are expected to draw a large number of entrants. The prize which will go to the winner consists of a cup valued at $1,000 and $1,000 in cash. The second boat to finish will receive a $500 cup and a similar amount in cash. The third boat will get a $250 cup and $250 in cash. To make the event more interesting the Havana Yacht club offers to the winner of the race back home a cup valued at $250.

The distance of the race is about 1,100 miles, but owing to the conformation of the coast the voyage is from 150 to 200 miles longer, depending upon the course taken.

LEMM A GOOD ONE.

Swiss Wrestler Certainly Entitled to Another Chance at Gotch.

Since his arrival in this country some time ago John Lemm, the Swiss wrestler, has made a splendid showing. In fact, he has proved that he is about the best foreign mat artist

JOHN LEMM, SWISS WRESTLER.

that has visited this country in the past two years. Lemm recently tackled Gotch and gave the champion more than he bargained for. Gotch agreed to throw Lemm twice within an hour, but failed. The Swiss after another match and is willing to back his chances with cash. Lemm is slightly under the average height, but very stocky. He weighs 160 pounds and is tremendously muscled. He made a great record for himself in Europe the past two years.

AUTOMOBILE SLEIGH RACING.

Competition to Be Held in France Feb.

12.—One Class For Air Propellers.

In connection with the winter festivals to be held by the Touring Club of France at Gerardmer, in the Vosges, it has been decided to hold a competition for automobile sleigh racing. The tests will be made Feb. 13 under the regulations and with the aid of the commission des concours of the Automobile Club of France.

One of the interesting features of the competition will be a class reserved to sleighs propelled by a motor driving an aerial propeller. Special encouragement is being given to this type of sleigh in the belief that it will prove the most practical.

Great Runners to Meet.

Melvin Sheppard, the world's fastest middle distance runner, and Harry Glasgow, his worthiest rival, will meet in a special race in Boston, Jan. 22.
The pair will compete in a half mile special race. In preparation for the event both athletes have begun training, and each is confident that the winner will hang up a new record.

Hayes-Dorando Again.

Johnny Hayes and Dorando Pierr, the heroes of the London Olympic Marathon in 1908, will renew their struggle for supremacy Jan. 16 in San Francisco. Dorando has accepted a challenge from Hayes, and the men will run over the full Marathon distance.
